

EDEN VALLEY ORCHARDS

COMMERCIAL PEAR ORCHARD EST. 1885

BUILDING AN INDUSTRY

Developing the vision where pear trees could thrive in the West is the driving force started by Joseph Stewart that now bridges three centuries of agricultural history in the Rogue River Valley of Oregon. Many followed in his footsteps and together they built a fruit industry that still is recognized today as a world-class location for premium pear fruit. Eden Valley Orchards is still host to the original trees planted 133 years ago. Continuing the legacy of pioneering new industries, Eden Valley Orchards now produces hard pear cider as a product of the original heritage trees.

THE PROPERTY TODAY

The Rogue Valley was recognized as the premier region in the world for commercial pears until the late 70's. As the quest for volume over quality diminished the region's vitality as a top producer of pears, the region reintroduced its agricultural prowess developing an equally historically relevant wine grape industry. Eden Valley Orchards again demonstrated vision in 1999, by expanding into premium winemaking and now combines both fruit products synergistically with the on-site production of award-winning wines and hard pear ciders.

TESTIMONIALS

"Best winery in Southern Oregon"

EdenVale is my favorite winery, and what makes them stand out among the many other Southern Oregon wineries is how they age their wine before release. You can try their 2006 Claret, a 2007 Syrah, and many wines just as old. They were made for ageing, and they have aged well. Also, the tasting room staff are funny and good natured.

— Dar S.

"We found the wines - and the entire experience of tasting there - really fabulous. They were pouring multiple wines from 07 and 08 that were off-the-charts wonderful for $10! And, the wines were reasonably priced...like in the $40, not $80, range.

The little tasting room was cool and comfortable on a really hot day and the wines served at the perfect temperature plus they offered some food. The service was friendly and knowledgeable but not pretentious. And, the mansion and grounds were lovely to see — Tanya F.

"This was easily the best winery we have been too. We have been to winery's from Portland to The Dallas to Medford. Staff was top notch. Pours we perfect. The wine was top notch! "

— Chris F.

NEWS - AWARDS - CONTACTS

ANNE & TIM ROOT- MYRON ROOT & COMPANY, INC. - OWNERS

Tim's grandfather Myron Root arrived in the Rogue Valley in 1908 at the beginning of the pear boom. For now four generations, the Root family has been a prominent leader throughout Southern Oregon's pear industry as a grower, packer, shipper ultimately creating a fruit processing company selling internationally. In 1999, the Roots acquired the Eden Valley Orchards property and have expanded and developed the property into a leading winery and cidery -- keeping it's history alive and relevant in the region.

Anne Root developed and managed the winery business since inception joined by Ashley in 2001 as a mother - daughter team. The project required pioneering work on land use approvals in Jackson County and she developed the first wine tourism marketing promotion that introduced the region's wineries and connected to the region's industry awareness. Anne and Tim have three other children and four super cute miniature dachshunds that come to work every day.

ASHLEY CAMPANELLA - DAUGHTER AND WINEMAKER

Ashley graduated from Eckerd College in St. Petersburg Florida in 2001 with a degree in Marine Science. She was active in the campus Search and Rescue team working with the local US. Coast Guard in rescuing damaged and grounded boats/yachts in Boca Bay. She arrived home to help start the business from the beginning and has contributed to every aspect of the property. She has always been one of the cellar hands starting with our first vintage in 2001 and has developed her talents to become our head winemaker in 2008. She has taken the EdenVale brand of wine and cider to national and international competitions and has developed a reputation in the state as a prominent woman winemaker. She is married with three children and two darling winery dogs - Lucy and Pepper.
